

Optical cable per kilometer

Overview

As of the most recent data, the cost of fiber optic cable itself can range from $1,000 to $3,000 per kilometer for single-mode fiber, while multi-mode fiber might cost slightly less. Fiber optic cables are high-tech communications cables that carry information like bursts of light along extremely thin glass or plastic strands, providing high-speed, high-bandwidth connectivity with little loss of signal. If actual values for all of the loss variables are not known, an estimation for each is needed to complete the calculations. In this case, one would want to take a worst case approach to assure that there is adequate. Fiber optic cable transmission distance is determined by two primary physical factors that affect signal quality as light travels through the fiber medium. The price experience varies with splice work, cable type, and right-of-way costs.
